

weekly books dot net number six

Braahdo

v e r n o n h o w l

Marlin Brando

I am a one-man sweatshop, thoughtfully constructed in the design of a giant cruise ship and I scour the ocean for yachter's malaise. When I find it, I take that hot stank and I bottle it, and then I sell it to the Holy Union of Plankton Reform Students populating the high-fashion boots at the bottom of the sea. This is not the life that my father—who was a neon green snow shovel—wanted for me. He wanted me to be a snowblower or a glassblower or a blowtorch or a blowfish. There are so many types of blowfish, though: pufferfish, puffers, balloonfish, bubblefish, globefish, swellfish, toadfish, toadies, honey toads, sugar toads, and sea squab. Oh, the mighty marine order Tetraodontiformes!

10 Freakiest Examples of the Mandela Effect

Matthew Santoro ✓

3.8M views

But, in my youth, I stole enough milk from my deranged neighbor's goat pen that my bones broke the hard plastic shell of my shovel existence and I grew into a human boy. The neighbor kept his goats lean and dressed them in very plain tuxedos. When I came of age I scolded him and replaced their hideous formal outfits with colorful velvet loungewear. I paraded his goats around town in a full-on cultural revolt against the old loser. I made him feel about two-feet tall and he never dressed his goats in tuxedos again.

10 Secrets You Missed In The Haunting Of Hill House

Screen Rant ✓

Recommended for you

That fuzzy feeling of being alone in this world is the direct result of a rare strain of mold inside the walls of the high school on California St. in Shoshoni, Wyoming. I named my seventh daughter Shoshoni and told her she could grow up to be a Wyoming, or any other state. I told her she could be the best Wyoming or Idaho or New Hampshire this world has ever known. She could even be a potato or a spatula or a fern or an antique wooden chair, if she didn't want to be a piece of land with clear borders. In my opinion, the current Wyoming--a transgendered Mexican boy--is doing a horrendous job.

10 Photos With CREEPY Backstories

Top 10s

20M views

When all the jerk yacht brothers and sisters floating on the waters of this insane planet join forces in a dreaded yacht party, a large gathering of yacht appreciation and joy—sometimes a dozen or more yachts strong, anchored in a demented circle, shooting fireworks, squealing with the warped delight of pure wealth—I gather my plankton friends, so cozy in their electrified yacht-malaise boots, and I fly drones disguised as pelicans over their drunk heads. The pelican drones dump their malaise right back on them, and there isn't enough booze or communal revelry or slanted winks in the shared experience of extreme greed to quell the sadness bubbling right beneath their skin. It is truly a sight to see yacht folk lose their minds and murder one another with croquet mallets on the decks of million-dollar vessels floating atop the deep blue sea.

10 Unexpected Facts About The Amish That Will Make Your Ski...

TheTalko ✓

1.8M views

My father grew up in an era when it was illegal to think about water. It proved difficult—no, damn near impossible—to raise my twin little brothers, who were both born as puddles. Before their first birthdays, he dumped them in the ocean. I've been looking for Gary and Jim ever since but it's hard to find one puddle in the ocean, let alone twin puddles.

10 Disney Movies Secretly Based on Disturbing Stories

Screen Rant

8M views

So I sailed on, and I vowed to raise my kids differently and fed them a healthy diet of yachter's blood. I wanted to instill in them a sense that anything was possible, that no thoughts were bad or good so long as you had a belly full of blood and a head full of sunlight. My third-born, Frannie, disapproved of the violent ways in which I gathered the yachter's blood, but I assured her that it was it all fine and natural. I compared it to the lancing of a boil on the human body, as yacht anger is a blight on our civilization. The work I was doing was merely speeding up a much needed process, and I made it clear that there was no need to watch the yacht folk kill each other if she didn't want to. Frannie sipped her yacht-blood milkshake and smiled.

10 Most Dangerous Kids Toys Ever

GamerLists

6.2M views

The power of yachter's blood is as rich and mysterious as its oddly sweet taste is saccharine. By eating it we build an immunity to the yachter lifestyle and we strengthen the urge and the need to live with humility and eat a locally harvested, plant-based diet. When it is our time to die, we will simply swim to the bottom of the sea and cover our bodies with clams.

10 Secrets Hidden Inside Famous Logos

Brilliant News ✓

15M views

10 Hidden Messages In Famous Logos

Top Trending ✓

2M views

I work as hard as a mule and my yet my skin is as soft expensive bed sheets. This is because of my oceanic ways, which lead me down the straight and narrow path of being one with the natural salt of this earth. My sweat is the same as the air, is the same as the water I live with nonstop. My father the snow shovel only touched dirty water in the form of impure snow on walkways and driveways of yacht owners and other humans alike. Whenever I see a child throwing a snowball, I wonder if my twin brothers are inside and if they feel pain when it explodes upon the windshield of a car.

10 Parents Who Turned Their Kids Into MONSTERS For Fame

TheTalko

534K views

I met my wife when she was just a baby mold spore in the walls of Shoshoni High. We were experimenting with living our life as various fungal species, as teenagers are wont to do. We realized we were highschool sweethearts inside of a soap dispenser in a Coney Island bathroom on a vacation we took during an anti-bacterial phase.

10 Reasons You Should Know Who Olivia Colman Is

MsMojo ✓

96K views

Whenever I think about my brothers, I write two ballads on a mandolin with only one string, a sad song for Gary and a sad song for Jim. My days as an amateur musician are numbered, however, now that I am a full-time father and husband with a very important job. The workdays are long on the water, as there is no shortage of yachter's malaise. Haggling over prices with the Holy Union of Plankton Reform Students also takes up a good chunk of my time. We refer to them as Huppers, affectionately. They are different from regular plankton because they finally realized there was more to life than just being food for whales.

10 Scientifically Impossible Places That Actually Exist

Mind Boggler

Recommended for you

Another thing which separates Huppers from the regular plankton folk is their insistence on luxury housing. It is not enough for them to live inside an expensive boot on the bottom of the ocean. No, their boots need to have been once worn by high-fashion models in a high-fashion situation back on dry land. This type of footwear rarely makes it to the ocean floor and that is why their club is so exclusive.

10 Lies About Famous Movies You Probably Believe

WhatCulture

2.2M views

I designed myself but first I had to author five self-help books in order to figure out how to do that. The first four were major bestsellers and the last remains a cult classic—the best of both worlds. Having never been on a cruise, I molded my being into a cruise ship because that seems like the ultimate thing to think about and not do.

10 Celebs Who Have Been BANNED By Hollywood

TheTalko ✓

3.3M views

You can think about things and not do them and sometimes the thinking is a fine substitute. Sometimes it's not and you do the thing and more often than not it lets you down. So you circle back to just thinking and then you think of something else entirely.

10 REAL Photos That Will Give You Chills

Slapped Ham ✓

5.3M views

I am the very proud father of over 1,100 daughters and it so great watching them figure out what they want to be. Sandra is just getting out of her potato chip phase and her eyes are set on becoming a professional lawn jockey. I know she can do it. I believe in her.

10 Things Americans Do That Confuse The Rest Of The World!

Factnomenal ✓

8.8M views

We are all just stumbling through these boring plots. We become things, think things and occasionally do things in an effort to offset the boredom. It isn't easy because we often confuse purpose with meaning. We think we have a power when we transform our ideas into action but it's all an illusion. I could just as well be grating cheddar cheese into a lion enclosure at the zoo. The lions could be stand-ins for the miserable yachters in this play and it wouldn't any less or more sense. They could take that grated cheese and put it on a pile of leaves. Voila: nachos.

10 Haunted Dolls Caught On Tape

Eskify

11M views

My most controversial daughter is easily Ironika who has chosen to live as a stubby blade of fake grass on a mat of AstroTurf in an unkind desert climate. She is a horrible racist who infects anyone's toes with a burning rash who isn't also a piece of fake grass, which is basically everyone and everything. I blame myself for her poor turn as I did a bad job choosing her name. Your name is far more important than what you do or what you become. My name is Marlin Brando.

10 Scientifically Impossible Places That Actually Exist

Mind Boggler

15M views

A good thing to do is think of a thing and then scour the digital oceans for that thing to see if it already exists. The digital oceans are far worse than the ones with water with because things are so easy to find. Where's the challenge? Where's the mystery?